

Extracurricular ADVANTAGES

BASIC TIPS:

- Remember, you can always use the extracurricular activities that you participate in as resume boosters or speak about them during interviews with companies.
- If you are passionate about something, don't be afraid to figure out how you can bring that to the forefront of what you will be doing during your internship or co-op if the company is receptive.
- It can be interesting how your background in sports, music, the military, etc. can come into play in your corporate life. Pull from those experiences and make the most of them when possible!
- Your extracurricular experiences will likely offer an advantage when trying to land an internship or co-op since they make you who you are. Often times when employers learn about these experiences, they appreciate the value that they bring to the workplace.
